Feature Block 1 — The Atlas Score

Headline: One Number That Tells the Real Story

The Atlas Score (22–97) fuses five real data signals into a single actionable reading — no black box, no marketing spin.

Factor • Weight • What it measures

Momentum • 30% • Price move + position within day range

Analyst Breadth • 20% • Buy/Hold/Sell split across covering analysts

News Momentum • 15% • Recent headline sentiment + volume

Macro Alignment • 20% • Sector vs. current macro regime

Valuation • 15% • P/E percentile signal

Claude then reads the same data and writes a research note — bulls, bears, and a single actionable insight. The Score and the narrative always agree.

Feature Block 2 — 8 Sectors, Zero Guesswork

Headline: Where the Action Is, Surfaced Before Open

Every morning Atlas scans the top movers across:

- Mining • AI • Tech • Biotech
- Energy • Defense • Media • Other

The top 6 by absolute move in each sector get full narrative treatment. Everything else gets scored. You see what matters, not everything.

Visual note: Sector pill grid — each sector in its brand colour (orange/purple/cyan/green/amber/blue/pink/indigo)

Feature Block 3 — Daily Research, Delivered

Headline: Before the Bell. Every Day.

Atlas runs the full analysis pipeline overnight and by 9:30am ET you have:

- Atlas Score for every stock in your universe

- Sentiment: Strongly Bullish → Bearish
- 3 bull factors + 2 bear factors with real numbers
- Single-sentence actionable insight
- Live price with change + day range
- Analyst consensus breakdown

No weekend catch-up. No missed catalysts. No stale data.

Feature Block 4 — Macro Context Built In

Headline: The Market Doesn't Trade in Isolation. Neither Should You.

Every analysis includes live macro context:

- Fed funds rate & yield curve spread (10y–2y inversion flag)
- CPI YoY & unemployment rate
- VIX regime detection
- Sector-specific macro weighting — defense scores differently when VIX > 22 vs. when it's calm

This is the context most retail platforms strip out. Atlas bakes it in.
